Millican Announces Drop In Enrollment Projection

By Pete Reynolds

In a recent appearance on local television, President Millican stated that FTU's projected enrollment figures of 20,000 students by 1980 were a little optimistic and that a figure closer to 9,000 would be more realistic. Basing his report on a new enrollment projection study, Millican cited several reasons for this drastic difference. Among the reasons he stated were that the draft was ending, people are going to junior colleges instead, others are "and getting technical educations instead" and that a lot of people felt that more money can be made at some jobs without a four-year degree than can be made in a professional career with one.

Dr. John Bolte of academic affairs said that the 20,000 student figure was based on a 1968 study and that it is "ridiculous" to think that it is possible to make an accurate prediction 12 years into the future.

Bolte said that he "doesn't know how Dr. Millican came up with the figures he did because the official predictions are not due for release until March of this year." He felt that the 9,000 figure was probably a result of an impromptu question and answer session.

SG Unit To Probe Food Gripes

By John Chenet

A food investigation committee will be established by Student Government to investigate complaints about food services.

James K. Eller, director of auxiliary services, said he welcomes the new committee. said Eller, "I've been trying to get such a board for three years but there hasn't been anyone interested."

The board is being established after recent complaints about changes in weekend serving procedures. Students have also been told that meal cards are good for only one meal at a time.

Weekend meals are now being served in the Village Center snack bar.

Eller said maintenance of the main dining room is difficult on weekends when only a few maintenance employees are on hand to clean up, and that is why serving was switched to the smaller snack bar area.

Students were also using meal tickets to get extra meals after they had missed an earlier meal. Food services personnel told meal plan students their cards were good for one meal at a time and if the student missed it he could not accumulate missed meals to get extras in the future, Eller said, "One lunch day we served 350 students on 198 cards."

The food services director insisted that the purpose of the cafeteria is not to make money but to provide students with a decent meal. He said that food is one third cheaper at the FTU cafeteria than at comparable places in the area. There has been only one price increase in three years, despite wage increases for the 70 employees.

Eller observed, "The problem in mass feeding is the sameness of the food. Flavor suffers when you prepare food for a large number." He also said that students should not compare the food available here to "mom's cooking," because there is no comparison.

Food services has a catering program for banquets or buffets that Eller says costs about half as much as places in town offering similar services. He also stated that the cafeteria can prepare any type of food for such an occasion.

Faculty Unit Okays Semester Proposal

By Sharon Marek

A unified academic calendar for the entire state educational system of Florida came one step nearer reality this week with a preliminary vote of approval from the FTU Faculty Senate instruction committee.

The modified semester, popularly known as the "Texas plan," which would have two 16-week semesters and two 6-week summer mini-esters, was discussed at length by the 12-man committee, which ultimately decided to forward a resolution favoring adoption to the Faculty Senate.

According to a presentation made to the committee by Registrar W. Dan Chapman, the quarter system "has not operated as it was originally intended. It has reduced instructor productivity and has increased the number of courses a student takes. I personally would be in favor of the new plan, because it would reduce substantially the amount of paper work connected with registration and would cut out one registration per year."

All of the six members present expressed their favor of the resolution, and it was announced that the plan will be presented for Faculty Senate approval at its February 13 meeting.

In December 90 per cent of the Faculty Senate of the University of Florida voted in favor of the modified semester system.

SG Office Ransacked, Ticket Money Stolen

By David Foster

Student Government offices were ransacked early Wednesday and robbed of $40. The money was taken from cash boxes used to store money collected from the SG student subsidy program. Only bills of large denomination were taken, and unexplainedly a large quantity of smaller bills were left untouched.

The robbery was first discovered by SG secretary, Christine Thomas, who first noticed upon her arrival Wednesday morning that one of the office doors was left ajar. Inside, SG Vice President Lee Constantine's and SG Attorney General Gabriel Yanni's desks had been ransacked.

The door had been left ajar by the thief, but it remained locked, indicating the thief either had a SG key or a copy of one. According to Miss Thomas, only 10 keys have been issued to SG personnel.

The possibility that the thief had an SG key, and therefore access to all of the other SG offices, initiated a search of the other offices. A cash box lid was discovered ajar, leading to the further discovery that $40 had been stolen.

Miss Thomas conjectured that perhaps the thief had tried to make the ransacking of Constantine's office particularly obvious while carefully relocking the door to the office with the cash boxes in order to conceal the fact that the money had been taken.

Several persons expressed the opinion that because a key was used, the robbery was apparently an "inside" job.

Student Government was not the only victim of robberies during the last week, according to Ken Lawson, Village Center director. About $60 was stolen from the VC Game Room over last weekend. He said that there was no evidence of forced entry, again indicating a master key may have been used.

Life goes on as usual in the back room at FTU's food service facility despite a flurry of complaints from dormitory students about recent changes in hours and food ticket policy. Student Government has recently established a committee to investigate food services. (Photo by Craig Powell)

And Here Editorials

Quality, Not Quantity

Growth in numbers is not necessarily a true indicator of success, particularly in the growth of a university, but it seems that most people look for and expect just that.

There was a time in FTU's very early history when it was predicted that by 1980 we would have upwards of 30,000 students. This would mean an increase of 2,500 students per year over the 12-year period between 1968 and 1980. For two academic years it indeed seemed as if this projection made by the State University System would be an accurate one. But, a year ago at this time administrators began to realize that somewhere the state had gone wrong. Not only had enrollment ceased to increase by the expected numbers, but it had leveled off alarmingly.

It was a little like preparing for a war that never came. A 10-year battle plan had been formulated on the theory that by 1980 the university would be in the midst of an academic war to accommodate 30,000 student invaders.

The first reaction was shock even panic. As with the abandonment of any carefully nurtured plan, there was fear of the unknown. What would this mean to administrators, to faculty, to students, to the continued growth and success of the university?

One immediate result this past fall, when Full-Time Equivalent enrollment dropped 450 below the last year's, was a cut in budget and loss of 24 faculty positions. Further, it was known by past experience that the second and third quarters of the academic year would bring about an even larger decrease in FTE as well as head count.

A new plan of action became necessary. This time the university, in an attempt to correct some of the erroneous assumptions, made in the old "Code Document," undertook its own study. Results, released this week, have shown the university "may" have a student population of 10,000 by 1982.

What does this new growth assessment mean to the university community? Failure? Hardly...now, for the first time in its history FTU can cast out the old blitzkrieg battle plan and settle down to provide quality education for a reasonably easy to handle student population. Actually, it's a blessing in disguise. No longer will FTU have to worry about heavy traffic in the library, or about building a second one by 1980; about where to locate a new and larger bookstore to handle the crush; about how to pay for and where to put parking for 30,000-plus; about literally exploding curriculum offerings with little thought for quality. The university may never have to worry about crime and unrest so evident on campuses where the population is very dense.

In short, FTU can remain the kind of comfortable community we all would like to live in, and avoid most of the troubles of the "big-city" campuses. FTU may never become a giant in numbers, but it may well become a powerful giant of quality education.

HIDDEN THOUGHTS

By William Lee Hidden

One night, when I didn't feel like doing anything, I sat down to watch television. I didn't realize then that I was in for one of the best nights of TV dramatics and realism in boobtube history.

We catch the first show near the end. It's a show about a government organization formed to chase miniature UFOs across the TV screen. This time a member of this group (Man A) has ESP powers, and his mind has been taken over by aliens. He has been led to believe the leader of this organization (Man B) was responsible for his wife's death, and is about to kill B. However, a third person (Man C) starts to sneak up behind A. The leader, B, sees C but tries not to reveal this to A. Of course, A can read B's mind and knows C is back there. Fortunately, A gains control of his own mind long enough for C to sneak up and kill him. (Did you catch all that?)

The next show is no different. A police show starts out with a 90-year-old man stealing a 7-year-old boy's lollipop. The boy goes to the token black on the police force. The policeman puts out an all-points bulletin, completely unaware that the boy is actually a member of the Mafia, and the lollipop is filled with ten pounds of heroin. (It's a big lollipop!)

Then it's situation comedy time. This widow lady, who was babysitting her neighbor's white Angora cat, accidentally puts it in with her colored wash and dyes the cat lavender.

Enough of that! How about this variety show with a cute skit? Jim Nabors is playing an overexcited homosexual in an all-male bar.

What next? A television detective show. Lance Lampoon, private investigator, is being chased by someone from his old Army platoon. The guy blames Lance, who was sergeant of the platoon, for his case of food poisoning during the Korean war. Lance is pushed out of a car going 50 m.p.h. He falls from the third story of a parking complex! Lance is shot three times in the head, twice in the arm and once in the big toe! All of this explains why Lance has a slight limp as he runs into a back alley and catches a bus that happens by --- and escapes.

All in a night's viewing! It's enough to make you WANT to study!

"No more apathy at basketball games!"

Gator Advocate Blasts Comment

Editor:

Upon looking in a dictionary, one may run across, under the definition of honest, the word GENUINE. That was how the word was intended in my last letter to the editor before it was so badly misconstrued. But then, what honest means, or anything else for that matter, is of little importance. What is important is your misuse of the editorship in order to have the last word in an argument.

If uncovering foul play, corruption or injustice of even the smallest kind is muckraking, then call it what you like. It's better than a newspaper that looks the other way. As for what makes up the community of a university newspaper, you might be surprised to know that some university newspapers print local, state, national and international news and use one of the news services. If you need examples, possibly University of Texas, University of Michigan, Villanova and Harvard might do. But then we wouldn't know about big universities, now would we?

It seems to me that your viewpoint had been made very clear in your editorial two weeks ago. Your insistence on continuing this in the form of an editor's note was done in poor taste and practically a childish temper tantrum. Obviously, you just have a hatred for the Florida Alligator because of its viewpoint compared to your own, all of which is a poor basis for any sort of argument. But then we aren't running a "GENUINE" newspaper here, are we?

William Hidden

Opinion Needs Reassessment

Editor:

Your arguments about why it is "good" that the Alligator has finally gotten its "just due" need to be reevaluated. You have continually stated that a newspaper's first duty is to serve the community it is a part of, in this case a university, and not concern itself with matters outside that community.

Admittedly, I agree that a newspaper's first duty is to its readers, but even the paragon of papers, the Sentinel Star, carries world and national news besides news of Orlando.

I must take exception to the last part of your statement because it apparently presupposes that members of the academic community are not also members of an outside community. If we on campus did not have any relationship to the outside world then I would have no basis for this letter but I'd be most surprised to find a person of that nature. I'll bet that even you have contact with the outside world, however limited.

Pete Reynolds

Paper Editorial Draws Praise

Editor:

I wish to commend you on the superb editorial, "Requiescat In Pace," which appeared in the January 19 issue of the FuTure. I have followed this debate in the press, including the extended coverage in the Florida Alligator. You have summed up the situation beautifully, and I wish to congratulate the person who researched and wrote such a succinct editorial.

Strong universities are those that have strong student newspapers. I think FTU is moving into that class.

2 Roles Open In Student Play

Two small roles for men remain to be cast, as preparations continue for FTU's first student-written musical, to be presented 8:30 p.m., February 22, 23 and 24 in the Village Center Assembly Room.

Written by David Boelzner and Dennis Keeler, and directed by Keeler, "How To Fail At Life Without Really Trying" draws on a talented student cast and crew.

Portraying protagonist Tom Simmons, a small-town college graduate trying to make it big in New York City, is Randy Green. He is a junior music major who came to FTU last year from University of South Florida. He has appeared in many stage productions.

Laura Hardy, a freshman art major from Virginia, plays Julie Abra, Tom's romantic interest. Miss Hardy acquired her stage experience in "Lil' Abner" and "The Girls in 509."

Richard Wagner plays Julie's father, the president of a lingerie manufacturing firm. Wagner is a veteran stage performer and graduate of Adelphi University in New York. He played Captain Boyle in the spring production of "Juno and the Paycock."

Weber Ivy, who appeared as Firs, the butler, last winter in the theatre department's production of "The Cherry Orchard," plays Ernest Simmons, Tom's uncle and chairman of the board of the lingerie company.

Diane Davis and Martha Sanders portray the company maids, Molly and Enda. Miss Davis is another FTU stage veteran, having appeared in "Stop the World-I Want to Get Off," "Legacy of Cain" and "Juno and the Paycock." Miss Sanders, a newcomer to the stage, is a freshman music education major.

Appearing as the villain, Joe McCool, is Ed Dilks, a cinema student who comes to FTU from University of Delaware.

Set design will be done by Terry Crisp and the orchestra will consist of Karen Tucker, flute; Larry Jeffries, percussion, and Boelzner, piano.

"How to Fail" was written last year in response to a contest sponsored by the Village Center. It was awarded a $200 prize then, and after its presentation on campus, it will be entered in a national competition for collegiate-written musicals.

Students interested in filling the two vacant roles may call Keeler at 277-8466.

Education Association Will Host Workshop

Phi Delta Pi, FTU's chapter of the Student National Education Association (SNEA), is sponsoring a workshop tomorrow at the Village Center. The workshop is open to anyone interested and will include a group of learning skills designed to increase student interaction, communication and awareness.

SNEA is a service organization involved in both educational and community leadership. It is an integral part of the National Education Association (NEA).

Bob Hartlep, Phi Delta Pi chairman, said, "Phi Delta Pi is the largest organization on campus, and also the largest chapter in the state of Florida."

The chapter is interested in improving educational services, developing an understanding of the teaching profession, stimulating the highest ideals of professional ethics and involving students in national matters affecting their interests in education and the teaching profession.

The organization meets every two weeks at 11 a.m. in CB 115. Many services are available to members. "Money-saving programs such as discounts on travel tours, insurance and many others are available to members," Hartlep said.

There is also a teacher placement service available to members, as well as $100,000 professional liability insurance during the student teaching period. In addition, members receive subscriptions to the publications Today's Education and Student Impact, Florida Education, and SNEA News. A job listing is also maintained.

Hartlep added, "The organization is primarily for education majors, but persons seeking certification, or just interested in education are welcome to join."

"There are key guest speakers at the meetings. Mrs. DaVant, president of NEA, will be speaking both this Tuesday and February 15," Hartlep said.

Biology Building Ready For Bids

By Mark Weintz

Contracts for a Biological Sciences Building at FTU may be put up for bid by the end of February.

Fred Clayton, director of university physical planning, said the plans for the building are finished. Architects were appointed to draw the plans in April 1972, he added. Clayton described the time it took to complete the plans as a normal planning period.

The building will be used to teach and conduct research. The building, which will be four stories high and located opposite the Science Building, will be used primarily to house laboratories but will also include a number of classrooms and offices.

Clayton said he is "reasonably sure" the building will be ready about a year after construction begins.

He pointed out that construction cannot begin until after the processes of bidding and contracting have been completed. Clayton stated that due to the red tape involved it is not known when this will be.

According to Clayton, the Biological Sciences Building will be built in the conventional manner of construction as opposed to the systems method.

He said he felt the conventional method is better suited to university buildings. "The systems method works better when a building requires little variation from room to room or floor to floor, he explained. "When there is considerable variation in the building, the systems method takes longer."

At the present time two other new buildings are in process on the FTU campus.

The Humanities Building is under construction and it is not known exactly when it will be completed.

An educational complex is also planned but complete details concerning that structure have not been officially approved or released.

Debaters Victorious In Georgia Tourney

FTU's team of David Larkin and Alan Rainey captured the West Georgia College Debate Tournament with a final round victory over Samford University (Birmingham, Ala.) last weekend. In preliminary finals Larkin and Rainey defeated Florida State University, Alabama University and Emory University.

The West Georgia tournament was comprised of teams from 68 universities and colleges including Auburn, New York, Missouri, North Carolina, Vanderbilt and Wake Forest. Throughout the current season FTU has been competing against the finest debating schools in the nation.

FTU has retained the same team that won over 50 trophies plus the Florida state championship in 1971-72. The squad has taken 18 trophies thus far in the current season.

Rainey was chosen as the best debater at both the recent Samford University Debate Tournament and the Pensacola Tournament, while Jeff Ringer and Larkin were named the champions of the latter tourney. At the Stetson University matches, FTU's Pat Jerome, a freshman communication major, was the first place affirmative speaker.

Larkin, a sophomore majoring in communication and political science, and Rainey, a junior in political science, used dual strategies in attaining the top position at West Georgia. Against Samford they employed the spread strategy, in which a team attempts to offer such a large number of arguments against the opposing case that the opposition cannot answer all of them.

In their match with Emory, the two debaters used the slow-down analytical style, wherein several well-developed points are utilized against a team using the spread strategy. They were successful against both schools to take the tourney.

Two 2-man teams comprised of Ringer (sophomore in speech) and Rick Bloomquist (freshman in communication), and Ben Strom (junior in speech) and Larry Cook (junior in economics) debated at West Georgia.

The FTU team was well-versed on both sides of the debate issue: "Should the United States provide a comprehensive medical care program for all citizens?" Larkin and Rainey posted a 7-1 record in acquiring one of the top 16 positions in the West Georgia finals.

"We are, if not the strongest, one of the strongest teams in the Southeast," coach Jeff Butler commented, "and no one on our team will be graduating in the near future." Butler said that FTU is known in debating circles throughout the U.S. "We are the only school team competing with major college competition from all over the U.S."

A debate team member begins research in July, and competes from September to March. The team will often be gone as many as seven three and four day weekends in a row. In spite of this, FTU's debaters carry an average GPA of 3.3.

FTU Band Mixes Classical, Modern

By Mike Crites

The 50-member FTU band under the direction of Dr. Gale Sperry, chairman of the music department, presented an informal program of music in the Village Center Multi Purpose Room last Tuesday.

After a short introductory march number, the tambourine and brass sections performed "Black and White," a composition made popular by Three Dog Night. The band next played the contemporary classical piece, "Jubilance," by Caesar Giovannini.

Sperry said the show was designed as an outdoor presentation; however, due to cold weather the band performed indoors instead of at the originally intended VC Patio. The increased volume, a result of the indoor performance, was an enjoyable feature of the concert.

The program continued with Kabalevsky's "Suite in Minor Mode," transcribed by Richard Oliver and Frank Siekman. Clare Grundman's "American Folk Rhapsody No. 3" was next performed, followed by Hugh Stuart's "Three Ayres from Gloucester." The band concluded with Ellen Dedrick's freely designed "Rondo Go Round."

The FTU band was organized last fall quarter. Campus bands in the past have never consisted of more than nine people, and never had a director. Participation is open to all students, regardless of their major. In order to receive academic credit for playing, a student must sign up at registration. The band practices Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 1 to 1:50 p.m. in VC 166.

"Anyone who played clarinet in their high school band would probably enjoy being in the band," Sperry commented. "We need clarinets." He is hoping to eventually form two bands, stating that more reeds and woodwinds are needed in the current set-up.

Gayle Prince is in charge of the percussion section. Linda Hypes is first flutist, Mike Bridgland is first clarinetist and Dale Wood is first saxophonist. Mitchell Deutsche heads the French horn section, Randy Green holds first chair among the trumpet players and Ken Watkins is first trombonist. The baritones are led by Charter Murray, and the tubas by Karl Wolking.

FTU's band will be presenting more informal patio concerts in the future to communicate with the student between classes. Also the various smaller ensembles, such as the brass quintet, will be performing at various locations on campus. "The band will get stronger, and we should have much more music around campus," stated Sperry.

'Travels With My Aunt' Eccentrically Memorable

By Fran Elliott

"Unusual, fascinating, extraordinary and outrageous" are only a few words used by Henry to describe his "Travels with My Aunt," an eccentric old so-and-so by the name of Augusta.

Henry meets Augusta for the first time at the cremation ceremony for his dear dead mother. From the first, he feels the presence of a very free spirit. Little does he know where this acquaintance will take him. From England, where he has led an inhibited, steady, secure life raising his dahlias, they journey to France, Turkey and back again.

Augusta is compelled to move from locale to locale in order eventually to free her one "love of life," Mr. Visconti, from the clutches of his evil kidnapers. Augusta insists on Henry accompanying her on her travels, occasionally with her black companion, Wordsworth. The adventures they encounter are definitely kooky enough to be memorable.

However, the truly memorable attractions of this George Cukor movie are the marvelous characters of the old and young Augusta, played by Maggie Smith, and the distinctive role of Henry, portrayed by Alec McCowen. In addition, the filming and color are some of the clearest and truest of recent movies.

Miss Smith has a fantastic makeup job, perfect to the very last wrinkle for the part as "ancient Augusta," and she plays each and every chance for expression to the hilt. Her costumes are also outstanding making her as distinguishable in the 1920s as the Augusta of today. She doesn't miss an opportunity for a glance or a gesture to help depict the zany character of Henry's lovable aunt.

Henry himself is a contrast of personalities when in the presence of Augusta, yet a sincere love and admiration grows between them. Perhaps he enjoys in her something he has never experienced in his entire life...freedom.

Inevitably the whirlwind relationship between Henry and his balmy aunt comes to a head when he has just about had enough of her "indirect" dishonesty. He shouts insulting names at her and she screams that this may be his last chance at life—he must allow himself to do, to dream, to love.

Although her heart is broken when she discovers that the "Visconti Venture" is all a well-planned hoax, Augusta is moved by Henry's declaration of friendship and his concern for her, even after he finds out that she is his real mother, not his aunt. So in the North African desert the movie ends as they are flipping a coin to decide whether they will live life in his way or hers.

Either way, the understanding is that there will be a happy ending.

Barge Scholarship Given

An outstanding student majoring in history and political science is the last recipient of the Richmond I. Barge Scholarship.

Andrew A. Graham accepted the scholarship, which amounted to $290, for his scholastic accomplishments in the field of history. Graham, who began his college education at FTU in 1971, after eight years in the U.S. Navy, will graduate this June.

Graham scored a total of 740 points on the Law School Admissions Test (LSAT), and has applied to a number of the most prestigious law schools in the country. He hopes to attend law school this fall.

In addition to his academic accomplishments, Graham is president of the Cape Kennedy Young Democrats and served as a campaign manager in the most recent Brevard County school board election.

GIMME SHELTER

Ye Ole FuTure HORRISCOPE By John The Good, Transient Seer

For Friday, February 2, 1973.

IF YOU WERE BORN TODAY:

Clod. It's typical of your type of reasoning. Do you realize how many persons were born on common old Feb. 2? Thousands! Millions! That's how many. Stupid! With a little planning you could have been born on leap-day in leap-year. Then you wouldn't be any older than Orphan Annie and wouldn't have any eyes. Not you. You just have to be ordinary!

AQUARIUS:

There is a deep, dark, dreary secret burning within you, screaming to be let out. But you have promised never to tell it to a soul. On the other hand, if you don't release it, something inside you might go wrong, permanently. I am such a good person, I volunteer to let you tell me your secret for free. With friends like me around, what more do you need?

PISCES:

Dwarf-brain! Did you honestly think that by giving her a 'shiny new nickel' she would let you do that to her and still keep quiet? Have you no shame? Have you no honor? Have you another nickel? While it might not keep her quiet, I promise it will me!

ARIES:

Woof-darr. I see naught but ill. I see darkness. I see evil. I see you cheating with food stamps. Be careful. With the newly proposed penal system, if you are caught cheating on Uncle Sam they may force you not to pay income tax for the next six years. That'll teach you, you nasty old criminal, you.

TAURUS:

I have been in contact with your Great Aunt Fred. (It's your family that's weird, not mine.) She says unless you pay $50 a month to her favorite grandson, Alice, she (the Aunt) will haunt you (the Great-Nephew) the rest of your life by putting something gooey inside every pair of shoes you own. Her idea was Dippity-Doo, but my suggestion was guava jelly. I never have liked you too much, anyway.

GEMINI:

You are handsome, talented, clever, witty and naturally attractive to women. You are destined to greatness, as you were born under the same sign as such famous persons as Marvin Thoughtbrush, Irma Leaks, Dayton Ohio, and John the Good.

CANCER:

How can you say that with a straight face? (See "Famous Diseases I Have Known," by Alred D. Gottem.)

LEO:

Gee, Carol, didn't I see you talking to a ghost named "Topper" a few years ago?

VIRGO:

I have figured out why. . . I SAY: I HAVE FIGURED OUT WHY YOU ARE GOING DEAF. . . YOUR MOUTH IS OPEN SO WIDE THAT IT FORCES YOUR EARS SHUT. Dolt!

LIBRA:

Go back inside! Friday the 13th falls on a Tuesday this month. Not only that, but it's the day before St. Valentine's Day. We commemorate that day because it is when all those people were shot in Chicago or New York or someplace. (I have just been informed most of them were shot in the chest area, but a few got it in the head!)

SCORPIO:

What ho, varlet! Stand to and sally forth. Bizzzen the mainsail and strike the colors. Just think. (Unusual experience, isn't it?) If you hadn't bothered to come to classes today you could have had a three-day weekend. Dope!

SAGITTARITTARITTARIUS:

A word to the wise Sagittarian: "Don't take yourself so seriously. Nobody else does!"

CAPRICORN:

You may have an emotional upheaval today. Carry plenty of Excedrin and a few Kleenexes. Don't speak to strange tree frogs today, as one is an imposter.

'Barefoot' Acting Adequate

By Craig Powell

Take one drafty old brownstone in New York City, fill it full of screwballs, put a newly married couple on the top floor, and you have the setting for "Barefoot in the Park," the current production playing at Sebastian's Dinner Theatre.

Since "Barefoot" started out on Broadway as playwright Neil Simon's first hit, it has become a successful motion picture, has been seen on television and has been published around the world in more than 14 different languages.

The play focuses on Corie Bratter and her quiet, conservative young attorney husband of six days. After moving into a brownstone and being exposed a few days to such off-the-wall neighbors as Victor Velasco (a 58-year-old ex-adventurer), she begins to feel that her husband, Paul, is not exciting or unusual enough for her.

Dreama Perry fails to convince herself or the audience that she really is Corie, a young, mixed-up wife who hasn't figured out yet what marriage, life and her role as a wife are all about.

Mike Mazes plays an adequate Paul Bratter. Throughout all but the last few minutes of the play, he is a shy and level-headed young husband. The only time he exhibits any sense of emotion is during the scene in which he is drunk.

One of the best parts of the production, acting included, is Lou Folds' portrayal of Victor Velasco. Folds projects every facet of Velasco from his suave accent to his man-of-the-world bebop attire which blinds the audience every time he appears on stage.

Playing opposite Folds is Mary Hill, portraying Corie's mother. Her daughter matches her up with Velasco and, after one night on the town with him, she ends up drinking buttermilk and taking little pink pills. Miss Hill is right for the part and is a convincingly dull, middle-aged woman.

Dinner is served at 7 p.m. and curtain time is 8:40 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. Sundays, dinner is at 1 p.m. and curtain time at 2:40 p.m. The show is guaranteed to be a pleasant evenings entertainment after a tasty meal and a second cup of coffee.

A headline last week in the "Corsair," the Pensacola Junior College campus paper, read "Registration Aims For Convenience; Computer Speeds Up System." Boy, have they got something to learn! P.S., if you thought Friday Girl was trite, in the Corsair they're known as Pirate Mates.

State University System, Florida.

Enrollment has ground almost to a halt. At FTU projected enrollments have been cut drastically, and according to Linton E. Gunter, head of University of Florida Self-Study Office, enrollment there would "do well to keep its present level." The decrease in enrollment has occurred at universities throughout the country. The decrease has been explained by a reduced interest in four-year universities among youth and the fact the high population of youth in the 18-19 age range produced by the post-World War II baby boom, is beginning to dwindle. The baby boom, which triggered the mushrooming growth of colleges, peaked in 1958.

Gainesville, Florida.

Student Government at FTU has been dreaming of far-sighted objectives such as a rathskeller and a grocery store. What will they dream of after that? Well, at University of Florida, which has just about everything, SG just opened...ready?...a bicycle repair service. The service was started a few weeks ago and is free to U of F students. And at the University of South Florida, the talk centered not on the repair of bikes, but their protection. Due to a surge of bike thefts on the campus, USF administrators are considering a bike compound to go up near the student union center. Not that U of F has no problems in this area. More than 500 bikes were stolen from the U of F campus last year, and campus police are trying to curb the trend by registering bikes on campus.

Pensacola, Florida.

A rose by any other name? Though most state universities have chosen to call their student governments by prestigious names such as the "student senate," University of West Florida students have chosen the familiar route of high schools in calling theirs the "student council." Egad.

Students Tuned In To Amateur Radio

By Wilma Korb

"CQ 15-CQ 15-CQ 15-Here is William Baker 4 Texas Charlie Whiskey."

"WB4 TCW -- This is G3HAX - Golf 3 Hotel Alpha X-ray."

No, the Martians haven't landed, and a certain Mr. Wells is still well and hiding in Argentina. These messages just mean the FTU Amateur Radio Club is contacting someone in England or Brazil or Silver Springs or somewhere.

The Amateur Radio Club, which was founded three years ago, has come a long way since its founding. The purpose of the club is to promote amateur radio, to let members operate the club station at any time and to acquaint both students and faculty with the community services provided by an amateur radio station.

When the club was first formed in March 1970, the equipment used was loaned to the club by members. "We made antennas out of wire and met on the third floor of the Science Building in a storage room, reminisced Kelly Corcoran, the club's president. "In fall 1970, we received Student Government funds and moved to EN 502, and then got permission to put up an antenna."

The antenna, donated by former club member Eddie Truncellito, was erected in fall 1971, said vice president Floyd Van Auker. "As the club got more funds, we got more equipment, such as the Drake TR 4 (transceiver) and other accessories," he added.

"The club now has the capability of being on the air at any time. We have a power output of 200 watts," Corcoran noted. "The club is able to help foreign language students, in that we can put them in contact with foreigners on the radio," he added. "We can talk to countries all over the world."

The club also holds classes in order to teach Morse code to members desiring to learn it.

Ham radios can be very handy, Corcoran pointed out. He cited the part played by ham radio operators after the Managua earthquake when the only communication with the city was via ham radio.

"Anyone with an avid interest in ham radio can drop in on the Amateur Radio Club and find out more about it," Corcoran said. Club meetings are held 11 a.m. Tuesdays and noon Thursdays in EN 502.

The Saga Of FTU—FIT: Things Always Happen

By Shelby Strother

IT WAS that time of year again...when the FTU Knights took their annual chance to brave traveling to Melbourne to play Florida Institute of Technology (FIT) in basketball. It is safer to take a Saturday night walk down a dark alley in Harlem.

Things seem to happen when the two arch rivals square off...on the basketball court and in the stands. Part of the problem lies in the idea that both schools consider themselves Florida Tech. And they are.

But there is no brotherly love present when they reunite. Last Saturday was no exception. Two busloads of FTU students went to Melbourne, a place where red necks will always be in style, for the latest shootout. FIT, as always, had scheduled the Knights for their homecoming game to insure a large crowd.

IT IS coincidental that both schools have fine basketball teams this year. For records mean nothing when the title of Florida Tech (wherever she may be) is at stake.

The stands started filling up almost an hour before game time. The FTU team came out a half hour later, and were greeted by scattered jeers and catcalls.

The FTU caravan arrived shortly thereafter, a shroud of rowdiness accompanying them. No sooner were they seated than they began chanting, "F-T-U, F-T-U..."

FIT, a college known for its profoundness in the classroom, exhibited some low-class profaneness by answering, "F-YOU, TOO, F-YOU, TOO."

The cheerleaders took the court soon thereafter. One thing may be said in favor of Florida Tech, Orlando style. Their cheerleaders have the Melbourne representatives beat, skirts down. For FIT, to welcome their alumni home, paraded a dozen cheerleaders, all males to drag, onto the court amid howls of laughter.

FTU spectators also grabbed their chance to display their lack of dignity before the game started. When an announcement was made asking for a moment of silence commemorating the Vietnam ceasefire, a few overly zealous rooters screamed, "FTU ONE TIME..."

Then in an attempt to rectify their sins, they began singing the national anthem. Only one thing went wrong. They forgot the words and began giggling while the suddenly solemn FIT stands looked and listened with disgust.

The game started and FTU jumped to a commanding 14-5 lead. Enter FIT guard Richard Fingerlin. Exit the FTU lead. Fingerlin pumped in several long jump shots and the Knights became disorganized and went into the locker room at half time trailing by four points.

At halftime the proverbial manure really struck the ventilator. FIT had strung up a dummy, simply marked (in crayon no doubt) "FTU."

A SCHEME was devised by an FTU Student Government member (let's just call him Loudly Constantalk) to rip down the dummy hanging from the balcony. Word spread secretly of the proposed caper. But when time came to pull it off, only two FTU stalwarts ran the risk.

Armed with a small pocketknife, the dynamic duo ascended the stairs and began cutting down the atrocious dummy, which mocked the Golden Knights of Pegasus and all that is good.

However, inconspicuous they were not. In short order, no less than 40 FIT brutes were upon the gallant doers, threshing them rather soundly. One of the FTU heroes, who wishes to remain unnamed for fear of losing his job as sports editor, was strategically pounded by 20 of the sand-kickers at once, inspiring Fred Cay and Rod Rodriguez to shake their apathetic ways and lend a helping fist if needed.

ORDER was restored to allow the second half to begin. But not before an FIT official ordered the dummy, or what was left of it, taken down, trumpeting a moral victory for FTU. However, the two dummy thieves still realized the ravages of conflict as they licked their wounds and bruised pride.

The mini-riot seemed to arouse the Knight players. They started the second half with a blitz, poured it on and rolled to an 18-point victory margin. In the locker room afterwards, the players rushed to shower and make their getaway.

Knights Defeat FIT, 81-63; FTU Faces Rollins Monday

By Larry McCorkle
Sports Editor

halftime lead.

Notably absent in the first-half scoring was Mike Clark, who scored only two points. John Smith was held to two first-half points.

The second half was quite a reversal.

BOTH Clark and Smith began driving toward the basket in hopes of picking up fouls and/or points. Smith made his muscle well-known around the backboards in the second half by collecting 10 rebounds in the last quarter alone. The defensive rebounding of Smith and Haas, coupled with an outlet pass to Arnett Hall and a downcourt pass to Mike Clark resulted in several fast break layups in the second half. FTU's fast break and stingy second-half defense ultimately broke the game wide open.

Clark scored 15 points in the second half to finish as the game's high scorer with 17. Pete Haas scored 16 and John Smith added 14 points and an equal number of rebounds. Arnett Hall, averaging 20.2 prior to the game, scored 14, but he played a vital factor in the game defensively. Zettie McCrimon, who kept the team alive early with his outside shooting, also blocked several shots.

FTU should not have any trouble disposing of Florida Bible tomorrow night. That is, if they don't get caught looking ahead to Rollins. Both games will be played at Lake Highland at 8 p.m.

Rollins will pose a different problem. Early in the year, the Tars had problems, but have come back and are playing good basketball. They now have an 8-7 record. Rollins is not a big team. Bruce Howland, 6-5, and Alan Burnette, 6-6, are the team's biggest players. Marcus "Roadrunner" Wilson may sadly remind FTU of the almost now legendary "Fast" Eddie Smith.

Rollins is a well-coached team, and although that may be an overused expression, it fits the bill here. For Rollins is coached by Ed Jucker who has coached such basketball players as Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas, and his 1961 Cincinnati team won the NCAA National Championship.

Monday's game could be interesting.

Baseball Team Set For 1st Varsity Season

By Jack Sirianni

For the past two seasons the FTU baseball team has been a kettle full of talent with no match to light the fire—but now things have changed. The spark has arrived in the person of new head coach Doug Holmquist.

Holmquist came to FTU from the University of Vermont where he developed a mediocre team into the Yankee Conference Champs in five years. This will be the baseball team's first varsity season. With a lineup of returning veterans, junior college transfers and top-notch freshman, Holmquist's schedule may not be as tough as he first thought.

Leading Holmquist's crop of talent are 3-year veterans Jack Sirianni and Pat McCarty, along with last year's most effective pitcher "Wild" Bill Larsen.

Sirianni, second on the team in batting last year with a .355 average, will play outfield. McCarty led the team in homeruns last year and is the team's fastest player. After graduating from Auburndale

POOL TOURNAMENT

Today is the last day of the Village Center's two-day pool tournament. The last games will be played in the VC game room at 5 p.m.

FREY ON CAMPUS

U.S. Rep. Lou Frey will be on campus 2 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 15, the Village Center Assembly Room. After he speaks to students there will be a question and answer period.

High, McCarty went to the University of Mississippi where he ran track for a year.

The 6-3, 195 lb. Larsen turned down a professional offer from the Montreal Expos to play this year at FTU. Southpaw Pete McLaughlin, a product from Valencia C.C., like Larsen, is considered by some as one of the finest pitchers in Central Florida. The pitching staff is completed by Bob Pinholster, a Brevard C.C. transfer, Dan Radovic, a Lyman High product, Russ Allen, Pat Ryan and Rudy Werlink.

FTU's infield will be the strong point this year with talent two and three deep at almost every position.

Third base will be occupied by McCarty or Dave String, another transfer from Brevard. Second base is up for grabs between Mike Ferrell, a Seminole J. C. transfer or Larry Brown, another Lyman product. George Royal, a Winter Park High School graduate, will share duties with Ron Beebe, from Seminole J.C. at first base.

Sam Rixie, from Leesburg, and Dave Guido will do the catching chores.

Jimmy Horvath, a 6-3 All-State baseball player from Connecticut, seems to have full control of the shortstop position.

Ron Kerner, Dave Tiagha, both from New York, Jeff See, Stewart LaRoche, Van Mitchell and Sirianni will compete for the starting positions in the outfield.

Another surprise for Coach Holmquist was the acquisition of Assistant Coach John Hart, who was playing AA baseball for the Expos last year.

FTU has a challenging 41 game schedule including the likes of Jacksonville, Miami, Harvard, Air Force, Delaware, Columbia and Buffalo.

Coach Holmquist refuses to make any predictions. He only smiles.

FTU Grapplers Top Colgate, Take On FIU

By Fred Cay
Assistant Sports Editor

After losing a tough one to new arch rival University of Florida, Monday's win over Colgate was definitely important to FTU's young wrestling squad.

With the biggest week of the season just around the corner, it was a needed morale booster after the rather disheartening 21-18 setback to the defending state champion Gators last Friday night. In the words of assistant coach John Rouse, "everybody did a really good job," - high praise indeed from a member of the coaching staff.

But the results bear out Rouse's words. Losing only one match, the Knights convincingly whipped a strong Colgate team 28-12, boosting their overall record to 6-4-1.

Tonight at 7:30, Florida International University of Miami visits FTU, and the Knights are favored to cop their seventh win. The most outstanding individual for FIU is probably 167-pound Tom Jackson, a transfer from Miami-Dade North.

Highlighting the win over Colgate and highlighting also the young career of Sam Williams was a win over freshman Dan Halpin, a high school All-American last year. The 150-lb. Williams, also a freshman, dominated the match, 6-2, and dealt Halpin only the second loss of his career.

The stubborn Colgate squad salvaged ties in three of the first four matches, and trailed only 9-6 prior to Williams' big win. Then, in what Rouse termed as "the biggest victory of the night," FTU's Tom Hammons pinned opponent Jim Rich in 6:30 to give the Knights a commanding 18-6 bulge.

FTU then won three more battles as Ted Wansley whipped Doug Frantzan, 7-1, Charlie Patton won a superior decision over Dave Ceponis, 10-0, and heavyweight Pete Berkery defeated Grant Murray, 7-2.

The Florida match almost-but not quite-provided the top all-time victory for FTU wrestling. Florida's Jerry Ringi beat Joe Gicobbe before Pat Murphy won the 126-lb. class to even things. But then the home crowd really came to life as, first, Curt Sucher, then Mike Shivers registered pins to give the Knights an impressive 15-3 lead and apparent control of the match.

However, Williams and Hammons both lost heartbreakers to reigning state champs. Bob Penna, 150-pounder, nipped Williams 3-2, with one point added for riding time, and Jeff Davis won the 158-lb. competition, 5-4, also on riding time, and the once comfortable lead became only 15-9.

Charlie Patton was decisioned 4-2 by Tim Worsowitz; Gary Schneider of Florida pinned Ted Wansley and Chris Coroder beat FTU's Joe Yanovitch. Pete Berkery won the final contest, 4-3, over the Gators' Rick Lewis but it only narrowed the Florida margin of victory.

The Knights get a second chance at the Gators this Monday night in Gainesville in a tri-meet which also includes the University of Georgia. Following that-the climax of the season as far as the FTU grapplers are concerned-the state meet at Broward Community College, February 9-10.

SAE Surprises SSX In IM Basketball, 3-Way Tie For First Among Frats

Sigma Alpha Epsilon surprised previously unbeaten Sigma Sigma Chi 51-38 Wednesday afternoon to throw the intramural fraternity basketball league into a three-way deadlock at the top.

SAE upped its record to 5-1 with the big win to pull even with SSX and TKE. Each of the top three has one game remaining, with the important tussle between SAE and Alpha Tau Omega scheduled for Tuesday. ATO, 3-2, can't win the title this year but could spoil SAE's chance to take it. TKE will battle Lambda Chi Alpha the same day while SSX must get by Tau Epsilon Phi in a game rescheduled for Sunday, Feb. 11, at 1 p.m.

SAE beat SSX on the boards in Wednesday's battle. SSX missed forwards Ron Chesser and Dan Cieslak as SAE's Charlie Williams who scored 20 and Wayne Bennett dominated the inside game.

Guards Doug Akers, who netted 13, and Phil Merrick had to carry the scoring load for SSX. Randy Harvey also dumped in 16 for SAE.

TKE, nearly upset by Kappa Sigma last Friday, broke open a tight contest Monday with SAE late in the second half to win, 40-28. Eddie Barks again led the way for TKE with 14 points. Against KS, Larry McCorkle sank a pair of free throws in the closing seconds as TKE escaped, 32-31. Hot-shooting guards Donny Watts and Cliff Russell were near-heroes for KS with 12 and 10 markers, respectively.

The independent game to watch this coming week is on Wednesday--Faculty-Staff vs. Psychology Department--the top two in the Gold League. Meanwhile, the Bombers and GDI continue to roll along as leaders of the Black and Red divisions, and the Soccer Team and Powell's People, both 3-0, look to their deciding clash on February 12 for the Green League title.

The deadline for soccer entries, both fraternity and independent, is Monday.

Other games rescheduled for Sunday, Feb. 11, besides SSX-KS are the following: ATO-TEP at 1 p.m. and GDI-AFOTC and Eople-Mafia II at 2 p.m.

The battle for individual scoring honors for fraternity players is just as heated as the fight for the team title. Doug Akers of SSX holds a narrow edge with a 13 point-per-game average. Many independent teams still have played only one or two games, thus their leaders are not included this week.

Slimnastics Set

A women's slimmastics program, to be held each Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m., begins this coming week in the dome (behind the pool).

The program is a "trimming and toning, non-muscle building exercise course," according to Mona Crissey, assistant intramurals program director.

FTU Saga

John Smith, who led the second half surge for the Knights, slumped on a bench to rip off the tape on his ankles and remarked how great it was to play before some appreciative fans, no matter how rowdy they were.

And the FTU coach? Well, Torchy Clark said to reporters after the game, with his tongue in cheek, "I'd say it was a team victory. We showed a lot of poise. . . ." Blah, blah, etc. Not the most original statement but winning isn't a new sensation with Coach Clark or the Knights.

Pete Haas still beamed an ear-to-ear grin. Even though he played a fine game (15 points and several key rebounds), he was even more proud of the fact that he had not fouled out and had no technical fouls. For the FIT gymnasium has become a nemesis for FTU players and coaches. A few years ago, referees assessed six technical fouls and 45 personal fouls on the Knights and kicked both FTU coaches out of the gym.
